One Sentence that Has the Power to Change Your World

Recall a time when if you knew a word of advice, you would have decided differently. It could have been ending a relationship, making a purchase, or deciding where to attend college...a decision where you found yourself saying afterwards, "I wish someone would have told me..."

We all have specific areas of our lives where we wish someone would have told us something that would have prevented heartbreak, hardship, or avoidable difficulties. Furthermore, I would bet you an overpriced oat-milk honey latte that you also have people you respect and listen to. And that if they would have told you something, you would have decided and lived differently in light of what they said.

What to Know about Wisdom

That's why 1 Thessalonians 2:8 is so awesome: "We loved you so much that we shared with you not only God's Good News but our own lives too."

Our life experiences are meant to be shared. There are people in your life—your world—that are begging for you to share what you know and have experienced—your wisdom—with them. Wisdom is meant to be shared.

Look what happened! The Thessalonian church became so influential and impactful that they made it into the Bible! In large part to Paul, Silas, Timothy, and many others sharing their lives—their wisdom—with the Thessalonians.

What to do with Your Wisdom

You love the people in your world, I know you do. Think about people who've given you the right to speak into their life: roommates, children, teammates, students, and grandchildren.

With those people, you can put this verse into action and share your life with them. This one sentence could change your world and theirs forever: "I wish someone would have told me _____."

Fill in the blank. I wish someone would have told me: giving 10% of my income will actually free me from worry rather than add to it; reading one chapter of the New Testament a day and asking God what He wanted to teach me from it would change my life forever; or that I'm the average of the five people I hang around so I ought to be picky. I would have loved to have known all of these things much earlier!

A Wiser World

Jesus shared His wisdom. He knew the life He'd experienced and the things He learned were not His to be kept, but were for those He loved to learn, experience, and benefit from.

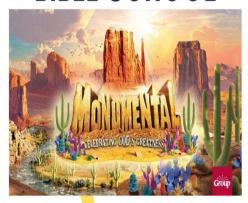

Think about your world if you shared your life with those you love the most. What would be different? Your children might make wiser financial decisions. Your friends might decide to spend more time with people who build them up rather than tear them down. Your mentee might just cultivate an outrageously generous heart and someday fund entire ministries that change thousands of lives.

This takes vulnerability and authenticity, which can be scary. But you, and they, will be glad that you did.
